

The Public Health Infrastructure Saves Lives Act Background

The Public Health Infrastructure Saves Lives Act would establish dedicated funding for a Core Public Health Infrastructure Program at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), awarding grants to state, local, tribal, and territorial health departments to ensure they have the tools, workforce, and systems in place to address existing and emerging health threats and reduce health disparities.

Foundational Capabilities of Public Health

Assessment – disease surveillance, epidemiology and laboratory capacity

All Hazards Preparedness and Response – the capacity to respond to public health threats

Policy Development & Support – the ability to serve as expert resource for public health policy

Communications – the ability to translate public health science to messaging for media, public, healthcare

Community Partnership – the ability to convene and build strategic partnerships across sectors

Leadership & Governance - the ability to lead internal and external stakeholders to consensus and action

Accountability – Performance management and quality improvement

Equity – the capacity to end and prevent disparities and promote optimal health in all communities

The Public Health Infrastructure Saves Lives Act Summary

KEY FACTS

- The siloed, disease-specific nature of public health funding has left very little investment in cross-cutting infrastructure and workforce, resulting in outdated, understaffed public health departments.
- State and local health departments need an additional 80,000 full-time equivalent staff to provide essential public health services.
- Only about half of the U.S. population is served by a comprehensive public health system.
- Experts estimate a \$4.5 billion annual shortfall in building foundational capabilities, or $13 per person.
- Even before the pandemic, state health agencies lost nearly 10% of their workforce from 2012-2019, while local health departments lost about 16% of their staff from 2008-2019.

BILL SUMMARY

The bill would create a Core Public Health Infrastructure Program at CDC to help modernize public health at every level to ensure every American is served by a 21st century health department:

- State, tribal, territorial and local health departments would receive sustained funding to address the foundational capabilities of public health, a core set of activities and measures that ensure they have the tools, highly trained workforce and systems in place to address existing and emerging health threats.
- The program would award grants to all state and territorial health departments, and to local health departments serving over 500,000 people, based on a formula determined by factors including population size, burden of preventable disease and disability, and poverty rate.
- Additional competitive grants would be available based on core public health infrastructure needs to local and tribal health departments.
- Grantees would also be eligible for technical assistance from the CDC.
- Grant awards would supplement, and not supplant, existing public health department resources
